ACTCOSS: OPENING OUR DOORS

The ACT Council of Social Service (ACTCOSS), the peak representative body for the ACT community sector, opens its doors today to invite the community in to its new offices in Phillip. Lin Hatfield-Dodds, the President of the Australian Council of Social Service (ACOSS) will officially launch proceedings.

'We decided to use this opportunity to both welcome the sector to our new premises and facilitate networking between our guests, which include members of the community sector, service users and government representatives' said Ms Ara Cresswell, ACTCOSS Director.

ACTCOSS moved to its new premises in Phillip in May. "ACTCOSS has found a new home on the south side", "allowing us to have closer contact with many services located around us" said Ms Cresswell. ACTCOSS is expecting to see many representatives from its member organisations present.
